

The next Bishop of Chester

Survey questions

The Church of England is looking to appoint the next Bishop of Chester to lead the Diocese of Chester and we are seeking your views on who that person should be and the qualities he or she should have.

We want as many people as possible to respond to the questions below so that whoever is appointed to be the next Bishop of Chester is the best person for the role.

We have created a short survey of five questions for you to complete. You are invited to contribute your thoughts as an individual, committee, PCC, or group.

1. What do you most value about the Diocese of Chester?
2. What do you think are the most immediate challenges facing the Diocese of Chester?
3. Different bishops bring different sorts of gifts to the role. Perhaps they are good at shaping a vision or thinking strategically. Perhaps they are good communicators who can teach the faith and inspire others. Perhaps they are good at challenging the status quo and working to change society, but what key qualities do you think the next Bishop of Chester should have?
4. If there is one vital thing you could get the next Bishop of Chester to do, what would it be?
5. Is there anything else that you think it important that we consider?
